To whom it may concern:

I do not think that you should call the cursed POWERPUFF GIRLS letters page "Girl Talk!" No, I do not think that would be at all appropriate. You may call the letters page anything you like except "Girl Talk!" Which is what you must not call it. I do not have a suggestion for you, but if I did, be assured that it would not be "Girl Talk!" Because "Girl Talk!" is too straightforward, simple, catchy and (ugh) "cute," like those accursed POWERPUFF GIRLS who I wish to eliminate from the face of the earth!!! If I did have a suggestion, which I do not, it would be "Destroy the POWERPUFF GIRLS!" But it would not be "Girl Talk!" Thank you very much for your time!

Dear Townsville News #6:

Issue #6 was my first regular series issue that I bought of THE POWERPUFF GIRLS. I was reading through my weekly DC Online newsletter. I thought Mojo Jojo finding out the Powerpuff Girls' hotline number would be kind of fun to read about. I e-mailed my local comic store and had Tom put away a copy for me. I was not disappointed.

I was glad the Girls were able to figure out the deception of Mojo Jojo calling and tricking them into thinking he was the Mayor on their hotline.

It was awesome how the kids were able to stop that monkey from stealing batteries. He ought to know stealing batteries is a crime. Bad monkey! He was not able to finish his laser cannon.

Perhaps the Professor ought to install Caller I.D. The Townsville Mayor and his secretary would even put Caller I.D. in the budget. They could squeeze it out of the remodeling-of-Mayor's-office-window finances. It is better than having an octopus battle at the Townsville Mayor's office with no aid from the Powerpuff Girls.
